TUESDAY, MAY 28, 1745.

Laſt Night arriv'd a Mail from Flanders.

Extract of a Private Letter from the Hague, dated May 29, 1745.

WE are extremely well ſatisfied here with the News we have receiv'd, from good Hands, from Munich. It appears that the preſent Elector of Bavaria is as firm and ſtady in his Reſolutions, as the late Emperor, his Father; and as he acts upon better Motives, there is reaſon to hope his Councils will be more ſucceſsful. He has hitherto regulated every Thing with the Auſtrian Miniſters to their Satisfaction; and has given the ſtrongeſt Demonſtrations, that tho' he might be forced into the late Treaty, he was inclined to execute by Choice, what, by Neceſſity, he was compelled to ſign. This was the Subſtance of what he declar'd to Count Colloredo before he ſet out for Vienna; and, at the ſame time, it is ſaid, he inſinuated, that as he had broke with the French for no other Reaſon than becauſe they had broke their Words with him, ſo the Queen of Hungary might ſafely depend upon him, as long as the Terms of the Treaty concluded with him were complied with. That he abandon'd his Pretenſions on the Succeſſion of the Houſe of Auſtria without Regret; provided, as he had been promiſed, ſuch Steps were taken, as might make his People feel effectually the good Conſequences of Peace. That for his own Part, he was determined to retrench a great Proportion, both of his Civil and Military Eſtabliſhments, for their Eaſe; and that the only Thing which inclined him to accept of Subſidies from any Court whatever, was in hopes they might contribute to the ſame good Purpoſe, and enable him to reſtore his Electorate to that flouriſhing Condition, in which it ſtood before the War began.

'The Slowneſs and ſeeming Inactivity of Count Traun's Army, ſince the ſurprizing Conqueſt of Bavaria, has, for ſome Time, given us infinite Diſquiet; but from the lateſt Accounts from Vienna, we begin to conceive this Matter in another Light. It ſeems, that Court judg'd it requiſite to conclude one War firſt, and to be ſure that the League of Franckfort was entirely and abſolutely ſubdued, or rather diſſolved; which once effected, they foreſaw, that as the French would have no Pretence, ſo it would not be long before they were deprived of the Power of continuing in Germany. It was with this View, that the Field-Marſhal was order'd to ſee the Heſſians diſarm'd, before any other Step was taken; becauſe, otherwiſe, that very Corps of Troops might poſſibly have join'd either the Prince of Conti, or M. de Saxe. This being done, there is the greateſt Probability, that upon the Marſhal's advancing to Franckfort, the French will retire without fighting at all; and leave the States and Princes of the Empire at Franckfort, at liberty to act for their own Preſervation; not only in making Choice of a proper Head, but in taking ſuch Meaſures as may enable that Head to reſtore the Glory of the Empire, and the Peace of Europe. At preſent, it is certain that M. de Traun has actually begun his March; and that it cannot be long before our Fears for Germany are determined.

'The Baron de Reiſchach has intimated here, that as ſoon as the Dyet of Election is over, the Auſtrian Troops will be at liberty, not only to drive the French out of Germany, but to compel them to act upon the Defenſive in their own Territories; and this, in Virtue of the Dyet's demanding Satisfaction for the Inſults offer'd to it by the French; and, in caſe of Refuſal, declaring War; which War will be proſecuted by the Troops of the Circles, with the Contingents of the Auſtrians and Hanoverians, in Conjunction with the Army under Count Traun, which will then begin to act offenſively in Alſace. As there is nothing in all this beyond the Bounds of Probability, we flatter ourſelves that the Face of Affairs will be quickly chang'd; and that we ſhall ſee the French, notwithſtanding all their boaſting, retire as precipitately out of Flanders this Summer, as they did the laſt; at the ſame time that we have the Conſolation to know, that they can have no ſuch Diverſion created in their Favour, as happened in the laſt critical Conjuncture, by the King of Pruſſia's invading Bohemia.'

Advices from Berlin ſay, that his Pruſſian Majeſty has diſgrac'd ſeveral of the beſt Officers in his Army, which has occaſioned very great Diſcontents; and that it was believed he would very ſoon be obliged to retire with his Forces to Glogaw, the Auſtrians and Saxons being ſuperior to him by 20,000 Men.

According to private Letters from the Army, the Dutch Court Martial which was lately held on the Officers who misbehaved in the Action near Fontenoi, have ſentenc'd a Lieutenant-General who retired precipitately with two Regiments of Horſe and Dragoons to Mons, to be ſhot at the Head of the Army; which, as the Sentence of that Court was ſo be final, it is preſumed was executed immediately.
